Anthropometry (from Greek ἄνθρωπος anthropos, 'human', and μέτρον metron, 'measure') refers to the measurement of the human individual. An early tool of physical anthropology, it has been used for identification, for the purposes of understanding human physical variation, in paleoanthropology and in various attempts to correlate physical with racial and psychological traits.

Anthropometry - Wikipedia

A system of anthropometric variables is a coherent set of body measurements to solve some specific problems. In the field of ergonomics and safety, the main problem is fitting equipment and workspace to humans and tailoring clothes to the right size.
