You could choose the CB500X adventure-style machine if you wanted more protection from the elements, while the CB500R is a racier looking prospect, but neither is as good as the standard F model. Honda also offers the custom cruiser Rebel that shares its frame and engine with the CB, but again the base machine wins out for us.

Style. To look at, Honda's new CB500F is a vast improvement on last year's model. It gains a more aggressive LED headlight, wider tank with pronounced air intakes, and sharper, more muscular body work that make it a proper 'mini-streetfighter'. The reserved look of old has gone and is instead replaced by a machine with more attitude and presence, not afraid to show off its best bits - like those blingy ceramic-coated engine covers.

The Honda CB500F occupies a unique spot in our lineup. It's an aggressively-styled streetfighter that's great for a wide range of riders. And for 2019, we've made some serious improvements. It now has more power, more style, a nicer sound, and a whole bunch of other functional upgrades. What didn't change is this bike's mission to put a new generation of riders on one of the best street machines possible, with a full range of opportunities ahead.
