Carol The Price Of Salt

The Price of Salt (later republished under the title Carol) is a 1952 romance novel by Patricia Highsmith, first published under the pseudonym "Claire Morgan". Highsmith—known as a suspense writer based on her psychological thriller Strangers on a Train—used an alias because she did not want to be tagged as "a lesbian-book writer", and because of the use of her own life references for ...

The Price of Salt - Wikipedia

"The Price of Salt" tells the story of a young woman's infatuation with an older, wealthy woman, culminating in a road trip across 1950s America. Slow burning, evocative, engaging while even occasionally funny and suspenseful, author Patricia Highsmith weaves a tale of star-crossed lovers, one wise, confident, and guarded and the other naïve, insecure, and lovesick.

In 1990, Bloomsbury republished the book as Carol under Highsmith's real name. In the afterword, she wrote: The appeal of The Price of Salt was that it had a happy ending for its two main characters, or at least they were going to try to have a future together. Prior to this book, homosexuals male and female in American novels had had to pay for their deviation by cutting their wrists, drowning themselves in a swimming pool, or by switching to heterosexuality (so it was stated), or by ...
