Refrigerant Charge Guide Tractor

I have been charging to a high side pressure of about 225 psi on a hot day and around 200 when it is a little milder. I know an over charge is going to show high pressures, there is a the possibility that some of these units may be under charged. Most of us know that an under charge will affect oil flow and can be very damaging to compressor.

Refrigerant charging-step by step procedure - refconhvac.com

These systems are critically charged and require correct airflow and accurate test instruments to properly and accurately charge the system. An R410a and R22 charging calculator or the "Non TXV Charging Guide" are required to determine the target total superheat. Because these systems do not "control superheat" it is critical that the airflow be as close to possible to correct prior to charging as the system will be charged to the airflow.
