The Maturity Model is a way of measuring how well developed management processes are. How well developed they should be depends on specific business needs. The Information Criteria contained in the COBIT Framework help to make sure that focus is on the right management aspects when describing actual practice.

Capability Maturity Model

One of the popular maturity models derived from CMMI is the Control Objectives for Information and related Technology (COBIT) maturity model. COBIT is an international recognized framework for IT Governance. It was originally developed in 1993 by the Information Systems Audit and Control Association (ISACA) and is now developed further by the IT Governance Institute . The rules defined in this maturity model are slightly different compared to CMMI. For this description COBIT version 4.1 is used.
