Take the rope seal and lay it on the work bench, it should have two flat sides, while holding the flat side down bend to a U shape, tap lightly with a small hammer so it lays flat, fit it into the seal groove in the block, it should fit all the way down into the groove.

How to install a rope seal correctly

Tie the first half of your rope to one of the horizontal seat poles using a clove hitch. You can start on any one of the four sides of the seat. Tie your knot and slide it all the way to one corner -- this is the starting point of your warp. A "warp" is simply the first round of rope, pointing in one direction, that gives the weave its shape.

How to Weave Rope Seats (with Pictures) - wikiHow

Cut a single piece of 1/8-inch rope about 60 feet long -- if you use larger diameter rope, you'll need less rope. Set its middle point over the middle nail in the front of the chair. Wrap from the middle to the left outside of the chair between the front-to-back weaving. When you reach the end, cut the rope and tack inside as before.
