Metal Forming Technology And Process

Forming, metal forming, is the metalworking process of fashioning metal parts and objects through mechanical deformation; the workpiece is reshaped without adding or removing material, and its mass remains unchanged. Forming operates on the materials science principle of plastic deformation, where the physical shape of a material is permanently deformed.

Forming (metalworking) - Wikipedia

In metal forming processes, additive manufacturing technologies are mostly used to manufacture dies for traditional forming processes, and not for the direct mass production of parts, since additive manufacturing processes to date are often not as fast and thereby time- and cost-efficient compared with conventional manufacturing processes (machining, casting, forming).
