Mackinder, Spykman and the Geopolitical. anaea 21 | 3 | 1 | 1 esief. Ballistic Missile Defence. I. n 1904, Halford Mackinder, the English geographer, outlined a parsimonious framework by which the geopolitics of Eurasia, and by extension the world, might be understood. The World Island of Eurasia, which contained the bulk of the world's productive and military potential, was divided, according to Mackinder, between a 'Heartland' encompassing Central Asia, Russia and Iran – which, if ...

The geopolitical frameworks of Halford Mackinder and Nicholas Spykman have undergone a resurgence over the last decade and have evoked an equal measure of criticism as well. Both critics and supporters, however, share certain assumptions about Spykman that have become part of the conventional wisdom defining his relationship to Mackinder and U.S. containment policy.

Writing in the early 1940s, Nicolas Spykman modified Mackinder's formulations by pointing to the existence of what he called an amphibious Rimland—located in between the Heartland and its great offshore islands—and stretching from Western Europe around the Middle East, across India, ending in coastal China. Spykman pointed out that most of the world's productive potential was in the Rimland, not within the Heartland.

Prof. Spykman [2] later refined Mackinder's strategy to adapt it to the new post-World War Two reality of the Cold War, doing so as early as 1944. Spykman came to the conclusion that the US was bound to face off with a strong Soviet Union on the Eurasian landmass in the aftermath of World War Two.

Timothy Boon von Ochssée: Mackinder and Spykman and the ...

Although Mackinder's "Heartland thesis" (Mackinder 1904, 1919) remains a masterpiece of geopolitical thinking, and albeit the rise of Moscow to the status of superpower can be considered to have been, at least in part, forecast by Mackinder, the British geographer had apparently underestimated the power potential of the United States and the growing importance of the North Atlantic basin, at least until 1943 (Mackinder 1943). Presciently, Spykman also foresaw the irresistible rise of ...

The concept of geopolitics (or geopolitik, as Germans called it) was proposed by Swedish political scientist Rudolf Kjellen in 1905. Its focus was political geography and combined Mackinder's heartland theory with Friedrich Ratzel's theory on the organic nature of the state.

Mackinder's Heartland Theory - ThoughtCo

Again, Spykman differs from Mackinder, who sees Eurasian wars as historically pitting the Heartland against the sea powers for control of the rimland, establishing a land power-sea power opposition. Spykman states that historically, battles have pitted either Britain and Rimland allies against Russia and its Rimland allies or Britain and Russia together against a dominating Rimland power.

Nicholas J. Spykman - Wikipedia

Geopolitics (from Greek γῆ gē "earth, land" and πολιτική politiké "politics") is the study of the effects of Earth's geography (human and physical) on politics and international relations. While geopolitics usually refers to countries and relations between them, it may also focus on two other kinds of states: de facto independent states with limited international recognition and ...

Geopolitics - Wikipedia

The first assumption sees Spykman as only modifying Mackinder's basic framework, while remaining compatible with its basic logic. The second, which builds on the first, is that Spykman's geopolitics (as understood) layed the foundations for U. S. containment policy through the writings of Kennan, containment documents, and later policymakers ...

Gerace M.P. Between Mackinder and Spykman: geopolitics ...

Another geographer and early thinker in geopolitics, Nicholas Spykman, came up with a diametrically opposite position on the basis of the same type of reasoning: a historical analysis, just as Eurocentric as that of Mackinder, that led him to a final conclusion that asserted the contrary to Mackinder's mantra:

Mackinder, Models and the New Silk Road: a Deceiving Tool ...

Nicholas Spykman, former director of the Institute of International Studies at the University of Yale, followed in Mackinder's footsteps and continued to develop the principles of geopolitics. It is he who introduced the concept of balance of power that became a foundation of geopolitics.

America's Plans and Geopolitics - Vision and Global Trends

Though he did some work of a "normal science" type and in state-level geopolitics, he is best known, as a theoretical geopolitician, for his part in the system-level grand-theoretical debate over Mackinder's Heartland doctrine, to which he counter-posed his own Rimland idea, which remains theoretically significant.

While all three uniquely address geopolitics they also transcend into other academic disciplines as well: Mackinder's Pivot is a fantastic read of history and geography, Spykman is concerned with the military strategy and geostrategy of Soviet containment, and Huntington's Clash is a political violence theory that views the world through the lens of anthropology.
