The Vestas V90-3MW is a three-bladed upwind wind turbine generator that uses pitch control and a doubly fed induction generator. Its manufacturer claims to have installed over 500 units of this type globally since launch. Vestas claims the turbine provides 50% more power for roughly the same weight as the V80. The V90-3MW should not be confused with the V90-2MW, which is essentially a V80-2MW with longer blades. It is produced in both an on and offshore version. The first V90-3MW was erected in

Built upon the technology of its predecessors, GE's 3 MW onshore wind turbine platform is adaptable to a full spectrum of wind regimes. Our 3 MW turbines range from 3.2 to 3.8 MW power output, and includes the 3.6-137, our highest performing turbine for Class III winds. Our 3 MW wind turbines share drivetrain and electrical system architecture with each of those systems being scaled and upgraded for improved performance and greater energy production, as compared to previous models.

Most wind turbine costs are headed in the wrong direction. A few years ago, according to one industry insider, a typical U.S. turbine installed cost $1.4 million/MW and a goal was to bring that figure down to $1 million. But costs are now closer to $2 million/MW for those onshore, and reportedly $3 to $4 million/MW for offshore turbines.
