I have probably worked on or played through 10 of these 1960A cabs. They might be the most common 4x12 out there. Marshall, being one of the most popular tube amp companies of all time, has basically chosen this as its main cab. Now I'll talk about Marshall cab quality in a bit, but first I want to comment on the speakers.

Especially since Joe S. spec'd the 1960A to go with his signature amp. The 1960A and 1960B were tried and they didn't sound right, imo. They sounded too shrill in the highs and lacking in the bass, imo. OK, maybe get a Mesa Standard 4x12 that I know sounds perfect. But, a Marshall amp should have a Marshall speaker cab to sit upon, right?
