The big valve 125 engines should be set at.003" and.004". There is a TDC mark on the flywheel which is easy to get to by removing the left side cover. My break in method is to take it a bit easy for the first couple hundred miles. Others will surely have different recommendations.

The Lifan engine thread | Adventure Rider

I'm surprised Honda and Yamaha aren't more of a factor in the small engine business. They make some of the most innovative small engines. Maybe it's because they would have to charge more for them than the market would bear. Still, I'd like to see the small engines get a little more durable and some more horses per cubic centimeter. I mean come on, a 12 hp Briggs is like almost 500 cc. As a ...
