The most significant difference between AISC 9th edition and AISC 360-05/AISC 360-10 specification is that the former follows a stress based approach whereas the later follows a strength based approach. The former calculates allowable member stresses and the later calculates allowable/design member strengths. The AISC 9th edition is purely ASD but the AISC 360-05/10 supports design as per both ASD and LRFD.
