New Constitutionalism In Latin America

Latin America has a long tradition of constitutional reform. Since the democratic transitions of the 1980s, most countries have amended their constitutions at least once, and some have even undergone constitutional reform several times. The global phenomenon of a new constitutionalism, with enhanced rights provisions, finds expression in the region, but the new constitutions, such as those of Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela, also have some peculiar characteristics which are ...

Table of Contents: New constitutionalism in Latin America
Common-good constitutionalism helps us understand the limits of positivism in constitutional law by showing us that constitutions are not a set of rigid and fixed rules aimed only at constraining the abuse of power. As demonstrated by the Latin American experience, constitutions should also be open rules aimed at promoting the common good. The challenge is to build a transformative constitutionalism aimed at achieving the common good through a capable administrative state that works under ...
