The European Powers became alarmed with the success of the Balkan States in the war. This was due to a rapid growth of intense nationalism which made them a threat to larger countries. The major powers' fears were appeased with the Treaty of London. The Balkan States felt cheated through the treaty which created a friction among the Balkan allies.

Misha Glenny attempts the unimaginable by trying to write a two hundred year comprehensive history of nationalism in the Balkans. Stunningly, his work is a tremendous success of epic proportions.
His basic thesis is that the problems in the Balkans are not a result of the ignorance or war like nature of the Balkan people as many suggest but rather a result of the carelessness of Imperialism and the great powers.

independence.

How Nationalism in Balkans Contributed to First World War ...

The 1877–78 Russo-Turkish War dealt a decisive blow to Ottoman power in the Balkan Peninsula, leaving the empire with only a precarious hold on Macedonia and the Albanian-populated lands. The Albanians' fear that the lands they inhabited would be partitioned among Montenegro, Serbia, Bulgaria, and Greece fueled the rise of Albanian nationalism.

Rise of nationalism in the Ottoman Empire - Wikipedia

The Balkans referred to a cluster of nations in Eastern Europe. It lay between the Ottoman and Austro-Hungarian empires. It is considered as one of the causes of the First World War as it was strategically placed and it would help European nations achieve invincibility. This region was also politically unstable as there were different ethnicities and there was also rising nationalism in the region.
