Outdoor cooking differs substantially from kitchen-based cooking, the most obvious difference being lack of an easily defined kitchen area. As a result, campers and backpackers have developed a significant body of techniques and specialized equipment for preparing food in outdoors environments. Such techniques have traditionally been associated with nomadic cultures such as the Berbers of ...

There is a “golden triangle” rule of kitchen design that you should consider when planning the layout of your outdoor kitchen. The theory is that a kitchen’s 3 main work areas should be arranged in a triangle at least 4 feet apart but no more than 9 feet. These 3 areas are the burner, the sink, and the refrigerator.
