The Book of Lies is really two books in one, for it skillfully interweaves the story of teenager Catherine or Cat, and her Uncle, local historian Charles. The book as far as Cat is concerned is set in the mid 1980's, whereas Charles the Uncle tells his story from the mid 60's, looking back to the German occupation of the island, a period of Guernsey history about which few books exist.

This is the second book of The Series Deadly Lies By Mary Stone & Bella Cross! In my opinion Kylie & Linc Character was so much more Mature and the intensity of Emotion for one another was Realistic. We were able to learn more of Linc PTSD and how it affects him in his Mind, Emotion, and his Relationship with Others..

Deadly Lies (Kylie Hatfield #2) by Mary Stone

Mary Horlock's The Book of Lies is a brilliant book about truth, peer pressure, and, above all, the culture of complicity and white washing that both allows and necessitates secrets and lies. Fifteen-year-old Cat lives on Guernsey, a self-proclaimed "SMALL PARADISE," where people convince themselves that nothing bad can ever happen and even the Nazi occupation is considered to have been "character building."

Review: The Book of Lies, Mary

Horlock | Literary Treats

I didn't, but having read The Book of Lies, I now know. There were four of them actually. And it's highly appropriate that Cat be the one who told me about this. She is the narrator of Mary Horlock's debut novel, and she is all about unearthing horrors. She comes by it honestly.
