Stability studies should include testing of stability-indicating attributes of the API, i.e. those that are susceptible to change during storage and are likely to influence quality, safety and/or efficacy. The testing should cover, as appropriate, the physical, chemical, biological and microbiological attributes.

Annex 10 - ICH

In cases of variations which require generation of stability data on the finished product or the active substance, the stability studies required, including commitment batches, should always be continued up to the approved shelf-life / retest period and the authorities should be informed immediately if any problems with the stability appear during storage, e.g. if outside specification or potentially outside specification.
