You need to recognize the ions in an ionic compound. The name gives you this information. The cation is always given first in a name, followed by the anion. So, you know the first part will always have a positive charge and the second part will have a negative charge. To know the charges, look at the periodic table. Sodium is an alkali metal, so you know it has a +1 charge, while chlorine is a halogen, so you know it has a -1 charge.

Nomenclature, a collection of rules for naming things, is important in science and in many other situations. This module describes an approach that is used to name simple ionic and molecular compounds, such as NaCl, CaCO₃, and N₂O₄. The simplest of these are binary compounds, those containing only two elements, but we will also consider how to name ionic compounds containing polyatomic ions ...
