Lab 13A: Map Skills II Ian Saunders and Stuart MacKinnon. This lab addresses the fundamentals of how to specify direction and then focusses on the three-dimensional nature of the landscape as expressed in topographic maps – maps which show the three-dimensional landscape by means of contour lines. It builds on the material that was covered in Lab 12, such as deriving locations and distances from a map, so be sure that you are familiar with that material before starting this lab.
