According to our beliefs, one of the most important events in modern history of orthodontics is the appearance of microimplants. The challenge to 3rd Newton’s law (every action provokes reaction) can be achieved by means of skeletal anchorage, but the use of zygomatic ligatures, mini plates, etc., hasn’t been so wide due to technical difficulties.

General Dentistry and Oral Surgery have provided Orthodontics the idea of using implants as rigid anchorage. These implants are relatively small, a few milimitres long, which is the reason they are called microimplants. They are being placed at the stage of the treatment when anchorage is mostly needed, and can be easily removed later on.

Microimplants - Orthodontic appliances
Aside from scheduling and mechanics, my personal feeling is that microimplants in orthodontics have two or three major practical problems. First is the fact that they can loosen up. Failure to hold can happen at the time of placement or at some future time.
