Grounding of the neutral securely anchors the neutral to earth/ground and thus helps to assure the suppression of transient line-to-ground over voltages. This minimizes damage to motor and power umbilical insulation and allows cable core design to a lower insulation level. Stable consistent voltage levels support the proper operation of equipment.

Fritzing Considerations about grounding - - Forums

It is desirable to reduce the touch voltage personnel can be exposed to a value similar or lower than 240VAC. This can be accomplished by directly grounding mid point of the output of 400VDC power supply (Fig. 8) to limit the human body exposure voltage from either polarity to ground to 200VDC (1/2 line voltage).
