Phenomenology. Phenomenology in sociology developed around symbolic interactionism and the idea that society is made by people rather than the other way around. Social phenomena are social constructs. The family, for example, is not an objective social fact but rather something that only makes sense in terms of what people mean by the word and what they mean can change over time or between societies.

Edmund Husserl (1859–1938), a philosopher, established the discipline of phenomenology. In Husserl's approach to phenomenology, now labelled descriptive phenomenology, experiences are described and researcher perceptions are set aside or 'bracketed' in order to enter into the life world of the research participant without any presuppositions. 1 Experience is recognised to involve perception, thought, memory, imagination and emotion, each involving 'intentionality', as the ...
