Deciphering the Truth on Self-Ligating Braces | TDR ...

Just like normal braces, self-ligating braces use a combination of wires and brackets to gently move your teeth into the correct place in your jaw over time. The brackets are fixed to the surfaces of each tooth, and a metal wire is engaged in each bracket to connect your teeth and expertly pull them in the right direction.

What are self-ligating braces?

Essentially, Self-Ligating Braces are when the braces are attached to the tooth and a metal door on the bracket holds the archwire freely into place. This helps to move teeth naturally as they are straightened. Unlike traditional braces, you don't need rubber bands or elastic rings to hold the orthodontic wire to the bracket.
