100 Positive Comments to Utilize when Speaking on Students ...

Writing Final Comments. 1) Begin by making positive comments; when pointing out weaknesses, use a descriptive tone, rather than one that conveys disappointment or frustration. Give an honest assessment, but do not overwhelm the writer with an overly harsh or negative reaction. For example, do not assume or suggest that if a paper is not well written, the writer did not devote a lot of time to the assignment.

Commenting on Student Writing | The Center for Teaching ...

Delivery methods for positive messages usually come by way of spoken comments, written notes, and certificates or awards. Generally speaking, students can predict when to expect each type of praise. Written comments come on report cards and completed work. Verbal praise usually follows good behavior or a correct answer to a question.

Positive Messages for Students That Truly Pack a Punch

It's usually best to begin with a positive comment about the paper, then mention a criticism, then another positive, and so on. The intermixture helps the student accept the criticisms and shows that you have a balanced response to the paper. 6. Don't use subordination, or "but" or "however" transitions unless transitioning from negative to positive.

101 Phrases of Praise for Students - mcsed.net

Drawing Connections Between the "Big Picture" and the Details: One common approach to commenting on student work is to offer praise, criticism, and questions in the margins of a paper, and then to provide a more general overview of what the paper does well and what it does poorly in a head note or end note.

Giving Feedback on Student Writing | U-M LSA Sweetland ...

Feedback: Clear about problem (weak argument) and why (missing negatives). Is consistent (student had this same problem on an earlier assignment). Makes a suggestion (diagram) and offers encouragement (good start). It might have been better to open with the encouraging comment, though.

Phrasing positive and negative feedback

Perhaps some of the following comments will help improve the organization of the paper and make clearer the ideas you are presenting. Reread the first paragraph of the paper. Rewrite the paragraph to clarify whether this paper is focusing on the rhetoric of the event (eg "lies" and "gave the message that. . .") or the sociological aspects of the event (eg "not allowing outsiders to participate").

Sample of a Professor's Remarks on a Student Paper ...

Your comments on student writing should clearly reflect the hierarchy of your concerns about the paper. Major issues should be treated more prominently and at greater length; minor issues should be treated briefly or not at all.

Responding to Student Writing | Harvard Writing Project

understand the connection between the paper and your final comments. If you tell a student in the final comment that he or she needs more analysis, for example, the student should be able to locate one or more specific sites in the text that you think are lacking. • Make some positive comments. "Good point" and "great move here" mean a lot to students, as do

Responding to Student Writing

Tell students upfront what you will be looking for in their papers. Then keep this focus in mind when formulating comments on each paper. If you're concentrating on argument, provide direct feedback on each student's argument. For example: "Your argument is strong, clearly stated, and supported by ample evidence."

Excerpted comments on an early draft of a student essay on the changing role of fathers in post-World War II poetry (class: Eng 211: American Literature from 1865 to present) As for the essay, it starts well, but I wonder if it spends a little too much time talking about fathers in general rather than specifically.

Sample Essay Feedback - Siân Griffiths, PhD

I think that providing students with clear, informative feedback is much more beneficial for student's writing development than just giving them a score at the top of the paper and a few comments. When you provide children with good feedback, they are able to improve their writing skills.

Giving Student Feedback: 20 Tips To Do It Right | InformED

There are two main types of comments you can offer your students: error correction and content/ideas critique.

Content/ideas critique focuses on "what you write". These comments evaluate the student's ability to write a focused paper with support and a logical development of ideas. Error correction emphasizes "how you write".
