Design of the Bio-digester for Biogas Production: A Review. Abstract: This review is a summary of different aspects of the design and operation of biogas digesters. Three types of digesters were reviewed, that is, the plug flow, floating drum and the fixed dome digester. Biogas is one of the products formed during the anaerobic digestion process. Anaerobic digestion is dependent on several factors such as the pH value, feeding material, temperature, pressure, organic loading rate, retention ...

A biogas plant is an anaerobic digester that produces biogas from animal wastes or energy crops. Energy crops are cheap crops grown for the purpose of biofuels, rather than food. Biofuels are liquid, gaseous, or solid fuel made from live or recently dead organic material known as biomass, as opposed to fossil fuels, which are composed of ancient biological materials.
