Electromagnetic Fields in Biological Systems - Lin, James ...

The effects of EMFs exposure on the biological systems and human body, due to its potential health hazards, have become the focus of interest since many years ago. The aim of this review is to investigate the biological effects of non-ionizing electromagnetic fields (EMFs) on human body and biological systems on the basis of recent findings. In the recent years, application of electrical devices as an artificial source of EMFs has drastically increased the amount of human exposure in daily life.
