- Specifications 6A, 16A and 16C should revise their design section to direct the designer to this new standard instead of the 2004 ASME Code.
- This may require several changes in the body of th specifications.
- Since 17D refers to 6A for design requirements, no change is needed, unless they want to permit the use of von Mises equivalent stress.
- The 2004 ASME Code Section VIII Division 2 can be removed from the product specifications as a referenced standard, and Standard 6X added.
