The Europeanisation Of Conflict Resolutions

This book analyses the European Union's (EU) role in conflict resolution and reconciliation in Europe. It argues that the evolution of the policy mix, resources, framing influences and political opportunities - through which European integration affects conflicts and processes of conflict resolution - demonstrates a historical trend through which the EU has become an indispensable factor of conflict resolution.

The Europeanisation of conflict resolution: theory and ...

The proposition that European integration may be historically relevant to conflict resolution is not new. Integration is inseparable from the intellectual traditions of European political thought in search of new forms of political organisation to secure Europe's peace. References to a European union as a peace project are present in the writings of Maximilian de Béthune, Duc de Sully, reflecting on the role of a regional union to avoid the catastrophes of war, Bernardin de Saint-Pierre, ...

The Europeanisation of Conflict Resolutions: Regional ...

Here we define Europeanisation for the particular context of conflict settlement and resolution as: a mechanism and a process at the same time which is activated and encouraged by European institutions by linking the final outcome of the conflict with the degree of integration or association of conflict parties with European structures.
