Etching. Strictly speaking, etching is not a form of engraving but one where an acid paste and a stencil is used to create a matt finish on the glass. You can buy ready made etching stencils or you can use a scalpel to cut out your own stencils in adhesive paper. Acid etching and engraving combined can produce some interesting results. Glossary:

Five Glass Engraving Techniques and How They're Done.

Etching is traditionally the process of using strong acid or mordant to cut into the unprotected parts of a metal surface to create a design in intaglio (incised) in the metal. In modern manufacturing, other chemicals may be used on other types of material. As a method of printmaking, it is, along with engraving, the most important technique for old master prints, and remains in wide use today.
