Doing art can mean undertaking a course of study in art, just as one can do Engineering, Maths or English. In the context of your question, though, doing art is contrasted with making art, not 'doing' some other course of study. In this context, saying that one does art refers to the mechanics of the endeavour, whereas saying that one makes art focuses on more sublime aspects such as creativity, beauty and so on.

word choice - Difference between "doing art" and "making ...

A good definition of art, it seems to me, might be the science of making meaning-making tools. One reason subject matter has become central to discussions of art in this era of hot takes and think pieces is that viewing art as subject matter, especially political subject matter, makes it voluble, productive of discourse.
