Before the advent of smart phones, people relied on folded maps, pamphlets and travel guides to get from A to B. Those unwieldy folded maps found in the glove box of cars became popular in the 1950s and were used as a means of advertising for car companies, tourist agencies, oil producers and more.

A strong, easy-to-encapsulate reason why is vital because it’s the hook everyone will use – from you or an agent trying to interest publishers, through to the sales and marketing departments of the said publisher trying to get publicity for your book. One thing to keep in mind is that most successful travel books are aspirational.
