Interactive Learning is a pedagogical approach that incorporates social networking and urban computing into course design and delivery. Interactive Learning has evolved out of the hyper-growth in the use of digital technology and virtual communication, particularly by students. Beginning around 2000, students entering institutes of higher education have expected that interactive learning will be an integral part of their education. The use of interactive technology in learning for these students

Interactive Learning - Wikipedia

Interactive education involves a variety of techniques that range from lessons that require conversational skills to extensive project-based learning units that can cover an entire grading period. While traditional classrooms rely on the myth of the permanently engaged perfect student, smart teachers who implement interactive learning harness the kind of interpersonal interaction that we social animals do best.
