Public Health and Medical Anthropology | Anthropology 204

My main interest within medical anthropology is understanding health disparities. Medical anthropology allows me to take a holistic approach, something that I believe public health lacks, to analyze why certain populations have limited access to health care, nutrition, clean water, proper housing, education, etc. Additionally, it allows me to use a critical lens to examine power structures that affect health care access. In addition to medical anthropology, I am also interested in ...

The Importance Of Medical Anthropology | ipl.org

To paraphrase Jaffré, where epidemiology can describe priorities, anthropology can define possibilities for action on population health.¹⁸ That is to say, anthropology can provide insight on why public health interventions succeed or fail: the gap between what is planned and what is realised on the ground and the unintended consequences that may result. People do not suffer from pathologies alone, but from a combination of pathology and the social and economic structures that predicate ...
