A travel fishing rod is a rod that can be split up into multiple sections, or fold down telescopically, for ease of transport. Although they take longer to assemble and deconstruct than their telescopic twins, multi piece travel fishing rods are often the favoured as there is less of a compromise on casting action as they more closely resemble the traditional one or two piece rods.

The rod or perch or pole is a surveyor's tool and unit of length of various historical definitions, often between 3 and 8 meters. In modern US customary units it is defined as 16 1/2 US survey feet, equal to exactly 1/320 of a surveyor's mile, or a quarter of a surveyor's chain, and is approximately 5.0292 meters. The rod is useful as a unit of length because whole number multiples of it can form one acre of square measure. The 'perfect acre' is a rectangular area of 43,560 square feet ...
