Description. RV leveling jacks are essential for a sturdy and safe stay in your Lippert slide room. If the leveling jacks on your slide-out give you trouble when you set up camp for the night, there are a couple things you should inspect when troubleshooting to find the issue and come up with a solution. In this lesson, Steve Albright walks you through a quick demonstration to teach you what to look for in order to get your RV leveling jacks back in working condition.

Troubleshooting RV Leveling Jacks: How to Test A Lippert Motor

We raised the jacks a little to take pressure off of them. Loosened the fitting on the leg side of the hose and let the fluid run out. Then removed it from the inside by the generator. We pulled it through the hole. To put the new one on, we fed it through the hole, tightened it on the inside by the generator and put it loosely on the jack leg side.

Also - Lippert says use an adapter with a battery operated drill to raise and lower the jacks manually. Using a 1/2" drive into the top of the gear box does not work - takes too much torque and the drill won't turn it. BUT, adapting it to the bottom of the motor really works well. Use a 5/16" socket.
