An example with the nine steps is provided by Mertler.

Chapter 2 Overview And Research Review

Psychological research is all about understanding psychological processes to make educated predictions about the most unpredictable thing there is:

human beings. For example, since ancient times, humans have been concerned about the effects of new technologies on our behaviors and thinking processes.

Chapter 2: Psychological Research Overview - Introductory ...

2.1 Overview of information. Because a literature review is a summary and analysis of the relevant publications on a topic, we first have to understand what is meant by 'the literature'. In this case, 'the literature' is a collection of all of the relevant written sources on a topic. It will include both theoretical and empirical works.

Chapter 2 Overview of the Research Process. Scientific research is the process of (1) developing an empirically answerable question, (2) deriving a falsifiable hypothesis derived from a theory that purports to answer the question, (3) collecting (or finding) and analyzing empirical data to test the hypothesis, (4) rejecting or failing to reject the hypothesis, and (5) relating the results of the analyses back to the theory from which the question was drawn.

Chapter 2 Overview of the Research Process | Semantic Scholar

The basic outlines of hypothesis-driven research were provided in Section 1.3.1, but when setting out to create an experiment to test a hypothesis, there is much more to consider. Your experiment should have at least one control or independent variable, and at least one response or dependent variable. The independent variable is something you are sure will change during the course of experimental measurements.
